

Community Fetes Retiring Red Cross Executive

By Bobby Westbrook
"WE SALUTE Mrs. Ida Kunkle who has completed 30 years of devoted service as executive secretary of the Monroe County Chapter of the American Red Cross. In her years of service, Mrs. Kunkle has contributed to the good of our community by immeasurable value."

Stroud Hotel for Mrs. Kunkle on her retirement. More than 150 people representing all sections of the county, and many organizations gathered to pay her their personal tribute. The scroll, read by Clifford Gilliam, dinner chairman and master of ceremony, continued:
"Her span of office embraced the history of two wars and a disastrous flood. Such conditions brought demands upon the Red Cross for service to military personnel and their families, the bereaved, the shelterless and the hungry.

"In her compassion for those who suffered, in need of comfort, food and shelter, Mrs. Kunkle gave herself to them in a spirit of love and mercy far beyond the call of duty.
"Then there were the routine days, unmarked by war or flood, when with steady devotion and loyalty to her task, she ministered to the sick, the ill-clothed and the helpless. She met these people not only on the level of their physical needs, but she infused in them so much of her own courage and strength that they too became strong and courageous.

"On this occasion we honor her for her unselfish labor of love. She has forever earned the respect, the love and gratitude of the whole community."
This was the purpose of the dinner, and these sentiments were underlying all the talks given by the many who had worked with her through the years.

However, each of the speakers also added some of the amusing things that have added zest and amusement to the tasks they shared with her.
Chapter chairmen who spoke included the present chairman, William Wells, who presented her also with a toy dog in token of the gauntlet of barking dogs she has had to run in her country visits.

Charles Bensinger, 1955-57, recalled highlights of the flood; Detlef Hansen, 1953-55, her assistance to successive chairmen.
"When love and skill work together, expect a masterpiece," quoted Arlington Williams, 1951-53. George Robinson, 1949-51, added the stories of the beginning of the blood bank; while Nelson Westbrook, 1947-49, went back to his own childhood to recall the story of how he and another boy had locked her son in a clock.

It was left to LeRoy Mikels, chairman from 1928 to 1947, to pay more serious tribute to what her service has meant to the Red Cross.
"Her leadership in enlisting the help of volunteers has been what has made this chapter great," he said.
Even here a touch of humor entered. He was chairman of the chapter when she was hired as the first executive secretary, at a time when Red Cross was (Please Turn To Page 2)

Red Army, Navy Must Bow To Party

MOSCOW, Oct. 31 (AP)—Soviet Russia's army and navy newspapers pounded it into soldiers and sailors today that they must acknowledge the supreme power of the Communist party and its Central Committee.
Strongly worded editorials appeared in the military organs for the third straight day as usually informed sources reported that Soviet leaders had reached a full decision on the case of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, and that a public announcement could be expected at any time.

Soviet Fleet, the navy paper, took as an example a Communist party member named Shepotkovsky commander of an unidentified Soviet warship, who it said had been lax in "developing the party spirit and strengthening party influence" aboard his ship.

Rape Shepotkovsky
The writer, Col. E. Titov, director of political administration of the Black Sea Fleet, accused Shepotkovsky of "displaying a swagger and haughtiness foreign to Soviet officers," said he was "rude to his subordinates and did not participate in their educational work."
Shepotkovsky "belittled the role of the party political work," Titov wrote, "and this had a negative effect on the quality of military preparedness and discipline" aboard ship. This lack of discipline, the writer went on, extended to "the party bureau and workers of the political department who overlooked serious shortcomings of comrade Shepotkovsky and permitted the weakening of party influence on all sides."

There were indications that the language used in denouncing Shepotkovsky might be repeated in the case of Zhukov. Such a device has been used before to prepare the public for changes about to be brought.

Charge Against Zhukov
(The Moscow correspondent of the Communist newspaper, L'Unita, hinted Zhukov would be accused of "bonapartism"—ambition to seize unlimited political power—in addition to dragging his feet on party indoctrination of the armed services.)

Western embassies in Moscow reported increased movement of troops, tanks and artillery, both day and night, in Moscow's streets. The reports said, however, the movements had been taking place over several weeks, and could be connected with preparations for the annual parade in Red Square on the Nov. 7 anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Grace Retires From Steel Posts

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—Eugene G. Grace, one of the titans of the American steel industry, today retired as chairman and chief executive officer of Bethlehem Steel Corp.
Directors of the nation's second largest steel company's abolished the office of chairman and designated Arthur B. Homer, president, as the new chief executive officer. Grace was named honorary chairman. He will remain a director.

Snark Missile Fired In Florida

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Defense Department announced tonight that a Snark guided missile was fired from the Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla., today.
The Snark is a long-range, "intercontinental" missile of about 5,000 miles range.
The Air Force missile is subsonic in speed in flight, but is designed to dive on its target in the terminal phase of flight at supersonic speed. It is capable of carrying a nuclear warhead.

Colorful Halloween Parade Is Viewed By Large Local Crowd

By Leonard Randolph
GOBLINS, skeletons, witches and ragamuffins disregarded the keynote of last night's annual Halloween parade which was set by the Kemp Kadets and their marching-jazz version of "Blue Skies."

No one could have asked for a better night for a parade. And only a few people would have asked for a better parade.

There were fewer "floats" than may have been anticipated. But the colorful procession more than made up for any lack of machinery with its emphasis on imaginative costumes, precision-minded band organizations and displays of horse-flesh and comedy.

The weather was fine. It was chilly enough for topcoats but the coats made the going perfectly comfortable. There seemed to be enough pretzels, lollipops and bubblegum distributed among the younger set to keep them occupied and nappy until the parade began.

It started off right on schedule. Organized and directed by Pocono Mountains Jaycees, the line of march was evenly matched with proper distribution of musical groups, children, floats and cars.

Rides in Motor Boat
Heading the parade, Miss Pocono Mountains reclined regally in the back seat of a streamlined motor boat pulled by an equally jet-aged automobile. Her "escort" was a brilliantly costumed "Royal English Guardsman" who seemed to reign over the passing crowd with simple dignity. (See separate story on Page 5.)
The parade had more than its fair share of good humor. Examples:

A curiously portable "teepee" which developed a stubborn habit of marching first in one direction, then another. The parade occasionally sprouted a pair of feet and, in the proper light, viewers could detect a pair of rather large eyes peering through the slot near its peak. The "teepee" marched east; came back west; "parked" for a short time near the corner of Seventh and Main to watch the parade go by.

(The teepee and its owner provided the parade's most poignant episode a short while later. The marcher stumbled briefly on the East Stroudsburg side of the twin-borough bridge. A part of the teepee clattered to the pavement. Then—as the parade rounded the corner on Washington St. from Crystal—the marcher fell to the street. The teepee fell apart all around him.)

It's Too Bad
(As the desperate owner scrambled to put the pieces back together he looked up to see other marchers descending upon him. Battered and confused, he finally gave up, kicked the pieces into the gutter and disappeared into the crowd.)
(It was too bad. Judges later said they had picked him as one of the winners in the parade. But—because he was not there when the final judging was finished and no one knew his identity, the prize was lost. Today the teepee owner can take some consolation from the news that only an accident kept him out of the prizewinners' circle.)

The dozens of smaller children decked out in clothes from another era. Another group of children who showed up bediapered and hegmired (and whose diapers showed a rather marked note of realism at bottom).

The "Scots Moonshiners," a carload of costumed "characters" straight out of Snuffy Smith. East Stroudsburg High School band majorettes who marched with large beach straw hats on their heads. And—on the more serious side—the cymbal player with the East Stroudsburg band who added a distinct flavor of professional showmanship to the simple rhythmic purpose of her playing.

Teamsters To Appeal Ouster Vote

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—The executive board of the Teamsters Union decided unanimously today against doing anything about corruption charges against its leaders—a course practically guaranteeing AFL-CIO expulsion.
Retiring Teamsters President Dave Beck, himself enmeshed in the charges, said the board voted to appeal a recent AFL-CIO suit to ouster order and seek to fight outright expulsion at the federation's convention Dec. 5 at Atlantic City, N. J.
Beck said the Teamsters bosses have no thought of kicking out President-elect James R. Hoffa or otherwise ridding their ranks of alleged corrupt influences as ordered by the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

Expected To Fall

Moreover, Beck said he really expects the appeal to the AFL-CIO convention to fail. He said he'd certainly have to be an optimist to think otherwise.
Beck said the Teamsters are ready to go it alone if that's what the AFL-CIO wants. He said the Teamsters might be better off outside the AFL-CIO.
"We're not looking for trouble, but we can dish it out if we have to," Beck told newsmen. "We take the position that anyone looking for trouble is most likely to find it."

Eisenhowers Flying To West Point

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower leave tomorrow on a sentimental journey back to West Point.
They are flying up to join other members of the President's class of 1915 at the U. S. Military Academy in presenting a drinking fountain to the school and to take in the Army-Colgate football game. These events will be on Saturday.

The President and First Lady are leaving here at 2:15 p.m. EST, tomorrow and flying to Stewart Field near West Point. Nothing is planned for tomorrow night other than a small, quiet dinner in their suite at the Thayer Hotel on the academy grounds.

Nobel Prizes Awarded To Two Chinese

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 31 (AP)—Two Chinese-born nuclear scientists won the $42,000 Nobel Prize in Physics today for disproving a theory that had been accepted as a basic law of the universe for more than 30 years.

Dr. Chen Ning Yang, 34, and Dr. Tsung Dao Lee, 30, both now working at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J., started on the research that led to their brilliant discovery as a result of "bull sessions" in Chinese restaurants near Columbia University in New York City.

They received news of the award today at Princeton while working in shirt sleeves, and grinned like schoolboys as congratulations poured in. "We both realize it's a very great honor," said Yang.

As a result of experiments proposed by physicists Yang and Lee, tiny particles of the atom may now be described as being right-handed or left-handed. They are so described because of "bull sessions" in Chinese restaurants near Columbia University in New York City.

Sides With Philadelphia Objectors

MORRISVILLE, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP)—Pennsylvania Highway secretary Lewis M. Stevens said today portions of the proposed Keystone Shortway from Sharon to Stroudsburg may be completed before the main turnpike is toll-free—but the Shortway won't be finished entirely until turnpike tolls have been removed.

Stevens made this statement following a meeting of the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission, which he came here to attend. He had conferred yesterday with Philadelphia's Mayor Richardson Dilworth and other city officials.

38 Cities Top Chest Goals

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—United Community Funds and Councils of America Inc. announced today that 38 cities have topped 1957 campaign goals. Contributions from these cities totaled $29,753,555.

Campaigns still are in progress in more than 2,000 cities. Those completing drives and exceeding goals include: Pennsylvania—Chester, $551,450; Butler, $149,103; New Wilmington, $3,535; Scranton, $1,263,069.

"I find myself in substantial agreement with the position which Mayor Dilworth presented at our meeting yesterday," Stevens said.

Stevens said "I would not expect that people in any part of the Commonwealth would wish either to jeopardize the credit of the turnpike commission or to injure the normal activities of a part of Pennsylvania by premature construction and completion of the Keystone Shortway."

Report Syria, Turkey Okay Use Of Dag

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—Syria and Turkey were understood to have agreed tonight to a plan whereby U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld would use his powers under the U.N. Charter to ease tension between them in the Middle East.

Hammarskjöld also was said to have agreed to the plan. The arrangement was worked out by Norwegian Delegate Hans Engen and Japanese Delegate Koto Madsudaira in talks with all parties.

Under the arrangement, neither of the two resolutions now pending will be pressed to a vote when the Assembly meets tomorrow.

The Assembly has scheduled debate on Syria's Soviet-supported complaint that Turkey has massed troops on her border for imminent attacks and they are threatening world peace.

Hammarskjöld is expected to tell the Assembly tomorrow that his services are available.

Los Angeles, Oct. 31

A giant airliner with 16 aboard, trapped in the sky with a broken landing gear, landed safely on its belly today before thousands of spectators.

Pilot Charles Dent brought the four-engine United Airliner DC7 in for a perfect landing on a runway made slick with fire-fighting foam.

The dramatic climax, coming after the plane had circled over Los Angeles International Airport for nearly three hours, released a storm of cheers from the thousands lining the airfield.

The 11 passengers aboard the nonstop flight from New York heaped praise on Dent and the other members of the crew. Stewardesses Ellen Stritt, 26, and Glenice Franklin, 20, both of New York, were described as "wonderful."

Just Sit Back

"The pilot told us to just sit back and relax and enjoy it," said one of the passengers.

Dent, of Allentown, Pa., said the right main landing gear failed to come down as he approached for a landing. He flew out over the Pacific Ocean for a series of dips and dives to try and jar loose the gear and decided on a crash landing when it remained stuck.

The passengers were not informed that a belly landing would be attempted until 45 minutes before he brought the big plane in. Dent said. They were given pillows to place behind and in front of them and served coffee just before landing.

Sociologists Study Role Of Counselor

By HERMAN R. ALLEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A MASSACHUSETTS study indicates the professional social worker thinks of the religious counselor — both Protestant and Catholic — as a kind of specialized "spot remover."

Jean L. Blumen and Allan W. Elster, Wellesley College sociologists say they have found as a result of a survey that there is no disposition on the part of professional social workers "to permit a place on the team" for the pastoral counselor.

The study involved questions on social work put to social workers and Protestant and Catholic clergymen. The investigators plan later to extend their study to cover Jewish as well as Christian clergymen.

Twenty-four Protestant and 20 Catholic clergymen returned the Wellesley investigators' questionnaires. The Wellesley pair then interviewed other clergymen of both faiths and visited a Protestant and a Catholic seminary as well as a counseling clinic maintained by the Protestant institution.

They sent questionnaires to 50 professional social workers, split about equally between a private and a public employ. They interviewed other social workers.

The most striking difference in the views of clergy as to their social role was this:

Speculate on Origin

Protestant ministers were unanimous in the role of counselor was placed upon them by their parishioners, and probably by society generally.

Catholic priests interviewed said generally that "the pastor's role as counselor derived from his intimate relationship with God."

One Protestant seminary professor shelved the views of his colleagues this way: "People turn to the pastor for help because of the concern of the religious community for each person. They expect from him unfaltering personal interest, unselfish devotion to their welfare and understanding of their inner feelings and needs."

The Catholic view—that pastoral counseling stems from the priest's intimacy with God—leads to the summarizing view of one of the priests who answered the Wellesley questionnaire that "the priest is primarily interested in the religious and spiritual welfare of the person."

The Wellesley investigators said the Catholic parish priest's picture of his role as counselor consisted of three well-defined actions: to remind the parishioner of his religious duties; explain the particular religious points involved in his problem and when he is sure he has accomplished the first two, to direct the individual to the proper agency—the church itself operates many—for further help.

The Protestants, however, view themselves as religious adviser, personal and family problem counselor, psychologist and psychiatrist all rolled into one.

Farm Receipts Here Exceed $3,000,000

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG, Oct. 31.—Monroe County's 687 farmers last year received cash receipts from the sale of their products totaling $3,911,500, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

Biggest single income-producer during the year turned out to be dairy products which brought income totaling $811,200 for Monroe farmers.

Next in line in cash receipts was poultry and poultry products which provided a gross income for Monroe farmers of $808,600.

Other top cash producers on the county farm front during the year included field crops, $568,900; horticultural specialties, $328,600; vegetable products, $328,600; livestock and livestock products, $232,500; fruits, $15,100. Forest products in the county produced a cash crop of $9000.

In gross income, the Monroe County average was $4,412 per farm as compared with a statewide $3,731 per farm.

Average gross income per farm acre stood at $39.29 for the county as against the per acre average for Pennsylvania of $56.12.

Perhaps reflecting the independence of Monroe County farmers is the fact that during the year government payments to farmers of the county stood at only $19,603—in contrast to $4,103,232 paid out in all of Pennsylvania.

Plan New Churches

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (P)—The Methodist church will put special emphasis on establishing new churches and Sunday schools from March, 1958, to March, 1965, Bishop Roy H. Short said the 12-month campaign, concentrating on organizing new churches in suburban and industrial areas as well as in neglected rural regions, is part of a six-year church program to strengthen local churches.

Dr. Rumsey Heads Drive On Diabetes

THE 1957 community-wide Diabetes Detection Drive will be directed by Dr. J. L. Rumsey, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Phillip Ehrig, president of the Monroe County Medical Society.

Dr. Rumsey was appointed chairman of the drive, which will be held during Diabetes Week, Nov. 17-23.

In outlining overall plans for the drive, he declared that his committee would wage an all-out effort to find the hidden cases of diabetes in Monroe County and alert them to the need for immediate medical treatment and control of the condition.

Seek Cooperation

Dr. Rumsey said that the Medical Society would seek the active cooperation of leaders of business, industry, unions, schools, clubs and organizations, and churches in the effort to make available a simple diabetes detection test for every man, woman and child in the community.

"An estimated one million Americans do not know they have diabetes," he warned, "and many of these individuals are in danger of suffering permanent disability if their condition is not detected in time."

Girard Incident Not Deliberate

MAEBASHI, Japan, Oct. 31 (P)—The prosecution conceded today William S. Girard did not intend to kill a Japanese shell scavenger and asked a Japanese court to give him a five-year sentence. It could have demanded 15 years.

Before resting its case, however, the prosecution pictured the 22-year-old Ottawa, Ill., soldier as unrepentant about the death of Mrs. Naka Sakai on a firing range Jan. 30. The question of repentance is important in Japanese courts.

Increase In Deaths

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (P)—The Public Health Service today reported a 27.4 per cent increase in influenza and pneumonia deaths in the nation's large cities last week as compared with the previous week.

Says Russia Developed Fine Casting

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (P)—Russia has shot far ahead of the United States in the use of a new steel casting technique, Senate investigators were told.

The process, said Rufus Easton, a steel construction executive, is called continuous casting. He said it is more economical than conventional casting and also permits the steel industry to decentralize.

"It is reported," Easton told the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, "that Russia expects to continuously cast 20 per cent of their total steel production by 1960."

Easton is manager of the continuous casting section of the Koppers Co. at Pittsburgh, the only U.S. firm now offering this continuous casting machinery for sale.

He testified at the opening of an investigation into new steel processes. Committee Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn.) asserted that information from the State Department indicates the Russians and some other foreign countries are ahead of this country in many of these processes.

Bell Telephone Co. To Purchase Hintze Building For Expansion

Need Room For Dial Installation

BELL TELEPHONE CO. of Pennsylvania has agreed to buy the Hintze Dry Cleaning and Fur Storage building.

Budd Van Horn, local Bell manager, said yesterday that the purchase is another step toward installation of dial phones in The Stroudsburgs. Bell hopes to have dial systems installed sometime in 1959.

The Hintze building is located at 22 S. Seventh St. It adjoins the Stroudsburg main office of Bell. The structure was erected 11 years ago by the present owner-operator, Elwood Hintze.

At his office yesterday afternoon Hintze said that he intends to complete sale of his equipment by Dec. 15. This is the date the cleaning establishment owner hopes to be out of the S. Seventh St. building.

Hintze now has under construction a new business place. It will be located at 120 N. Ninth St. in Stroudsburg and will house a self-service automatic laundry shop which will also include other services. Hintze said he expects the N. Ninth St. shop to be finished by Dec. 15, also.

Storage Vault
The move will necessitate sale of most of the equipment Hintze now has in use in the Seventh St. property. Included in this equipment is Monroe County's only storage vault, Hintze said.

He indicated that negotiations are now being carried on with an establishment laundry-dry cleaning business for possible purchase of the vault.

Plans now made by Bell Telephone call for eventual construction of a one-floor addition to the present headquarters office. VanHorn said that the company was faced with the choice of "building up" on top of its present structure or expanding on adjoining ground.

With continued expansion of Bell service bringing with it increased need for space and possible future expansion calling for even greater floor areas, the company chose the latter, Van Horn said.

Foremost item of business to be considered in the decision, however, was the coming installation of dial systems locally. Conversion to dial phones calls for extra equipment.

Special Equipment
Much of that equipment is large and delicately constructed. It needs specific housing and space layout so that maximum use of floor space can be made.

Dial phones for Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg subscribers are still somewhat in the future, Van Horn emphasized. Making the changeover in these two areas—containing large numbers of subscribers—is more complex than it has been in such areas as Bushkill where the conversion has already taken place.

No definite dates have been set for final purchase of the Hintze building, for the start of the Bell construction program or for the initiation of the dial system in the two boroughs.

There is one touch of irony in the current announcement. At one time the tract of land on which the Hintze plant stands was owned by Bell. It was sold after the company made a decision that it would be of no future advantage to its local installation.

Before the Hintze firm was opened the site served as the location for the old Frederick cleaners.

Denies Charge Of Passing Light

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Berlin, N. J., Police Chief Warren P. Kreis explained today that he was working at a parttime factory job at the time he is accused of going through a Philadelphia traffic light.

He has received a notice telling him to appear at a hearing for failure to answer the May 15 summons.

Kreis told a reporter he had not received the original summons and was working at the Owens-Illinois Glass plant here at the time of the alleged offense.

He said that at least 20 other Berlin residents are involved in similar mixups with Philadelphia police, who declined comment immediately.

Scott, Frey Appeal Conviction On Charge Of Reckless Driving During Labor Dispute

BANGOR—Both William D. Scott, plant superintendent of Blue Ridge Textile Co. and Gordon Frey, an employee of the firm, were found guilty of reckless driving by Raymond A. Traves, local justice of the peace, at a hearing held in Traves office last night.

Through their attorney, Edmund Turzot, the defendants posted bail of $50 each pending an appeal of Traves' decision in County Courts. Prior to last night's two-hour hearing each was free on bond of $300 each.

While Turzot moved to dismiss the charges for lack of evidence, Traves said that he thought there was enough evidence to issue a verdict. J. Lawrence Davis, borough solicitor, represented the borough (as prosecutor) in the case.

State Yule Trees To Be Graded

HARRISBURG, Oct. 31 (AP)—A new Christmas tree grading program goes into effect in Pennsylvania tomorrow — with participation expected to be somewhat less than widespread.

The state Agriculture Department said today the voluntary program calls for marking trees as U. S. Premium, U. S. 1 and U. S. 2 but said the standards program may have come too late to affect this year's market.

"The plan is expected to aid producers, wholesalers and the tree buyer of Christmas trees from wholesale and retail marketing through the establishment of specifications," said the department.

Teachers May Invest Funds

HARRISBURG, Oct. 31 (AP)—The state Justice Department ruled today that teachers' retirement funds may be invested in corporate bonds that are convertible into common stock.

However, the choice of conversion must lie with the state Public School Employees Retirement Board and not with the corporation.

The opinion said the board could not exercise the option to buy common stock.

Stroud Township Plans Special Census Project

AN UP-TO-DATE census of Stroud Township will be taken starting approximately Monday, Nov. 18, it was announced yesterday by Harold E. Albert, secretary to the board of supervisors.

The census was arranged by the Philadelphia regional office of the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Census and was requested by the township supervisors.

Albert said its purpose is to increase the reimbursement from gas tax money paid by the state to the township. He said the 1950 census, on which the reimbursement is partially based, gives the township a population of 3,509. He said the supervisors feel that the figure is now well over 5,000 persons.

Applications from 16 persons to serve as enumerators are needed between now and the start of the census, Albert said. He said applications may be obtained from him at his home or at Wyckoff's Store, where he is employed.

He urged residents of the township to cooperate with the enumerators when the census gets under way.

Three Jailed On Suspicion Of Burglary

THREE men accused of burglarizing the Floyd O. Cyphers electrical supply store at Bartonville last Thursday will probably be arraigned on the charges Saturday, a State Police spokesman said last night.

Identified as Jesse Pedro Smith, 29, and Claude Drake, 20, both of Augusta, N. J., and Milton (Red) Castmore, 37, Cortland, N. Y., they were returned here on fugitive warrants after their arrest in Newark.

The trio waived extradition after Newark police picked them up. The officers became suspicious when they saw two television sets, among the loot taken from the store, in the trio's car.

They are being held in Monroe County Jail pending arraignment.

Why Deny Clergymen Their Political Right?

We have always felt strongly for separation of church and state. We oppose the idea of any church or group of churches taking a direct part in the operation of government, as such.

We do not, however, believe the minister, priest or rabbi of a congregation should be stifled from advising his parishioners regarding matters political—especially in regard to personalities.

The clergyman certainly has the same right to express his personal opinions as does a banker, a plumber or a newspaperman. And, by all means, he should be frank and honest when members of his congregation invite his advice on political candidates, the same as he would on any other matter.

How many times have you and your friends sought out the counseling of your clergyman on a problem that was not spiritual in nature? We dare say, it has happened more than once.

We see no reason why a group of clergymen should not take a public stand on behalf of one candidate for the high position of judge in the Monroe-Pike Judicial District.

The clergy as such are not barred by the Constitution or any other law from stating their opinions on any subject, publicly or from the pulpit.

Moreover, we feel it is their duty to speak out, like a newspaper does, on matters affecting the welfare of their people and the welfare of the entire community.

As a matter of fact, we would challenge anyone who disputes that right, even if the clergymen would have endorsed Judge Fred W. Davis' opponent in the forthcoming election.

Find Strength For Your Life

America is a nation of strengths. Its industrial might gives her people the highest living standard in the world. Its powerful defenses safeguard her heritage of independence and freedom.

America is a nation of strong people. They have courageously resisted the cold war tactics of an alien doctrine. They have bravely stemmed the advances of aggressors.

America is a nation of shining ideals. It has held proudly in trust "the preservation of the sacred fire of liberty," as George Washington called it. It has always been a nation "under God," as the Pledge of Allegiance states.

America is a nation of growing spiritual strength. In its early years, hardly more than a tenth of its citizens were connected with religious groups. Since then we have put on much spiritual armor. Today 60 per cent of us are Church and Synagogue members. More than half of us attend worship services regularly. We are on the high tide of deepening interest in religion.

A French visitor to our shores in 1830, Alexis de Tocqueville, expressed his amazement at the power religion exerted upon the life of the nation. He found in America that the spirit of religion and the spirit of freedom "were intimately united and that they reigned in common over the same country."

Thus did the French writer discern the source of our strong freedoms—our recognition of our dependence upon God. In our own day President Eisenhower has called for "a frank acknowledgment of our faith that He can supply that additional strength which, for these trying times, is so sorely needed."

During November, Americans are urged to do just that. The month is set aside as Religion in American Life Month. During this period a nationwide program, backed by a vast advertising campaign, emphasizes the importance of religion in personal, family, community and national life.

Let this be our opportunity to help keep ourselves and our nation spiritually strong. Take to heart the RIAL theme, "Find the Strength for Your Life... Worship Together This Week."

Reds Lose No Time

Washington, Oct. 31 — The Communist who got that key job in the new International Atomic Energy Agency is losing no time in making the most of it.

He has sprung a willful back-tage scheme to give the Reds still more power.

Further, the chances appear good they will get at least part of what they are after.

That potent prize is several of the still-undetermined number of Deputy Directors General. They are to be the assistants of Director General W. Sterling Cole, the New York Republican Congressman, who got this $45,000-a-year position. This latest maneuver means that Cole will literally be enveloped by Communists—above him and all around him, as follows:

On Oct. 21, this column disclosed that Dr. Pavel Winckler, prominent Czechoslovakian Communist, had astonishingly emerged as chairman of the IAEA's Board of Directors, at the recent Vienna conference where this "atoms-for-peace" organization was established.

The Reds also grabbed off one-fourth of the membership of this all-important Board, plus other strategic places.

Representative Cole's selection as Director General was hailed as a significant triumph by Lewis Strauss, head of the U. S. Atomic Commission and its chief delegate at the Vienna parley.

But subsequently, from the unpublished proceedings of this meeting, bipartisan leaders of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee were startled to discover that Cole, as administrative officer, will function directly under the chairman of the Board of Governors—Communist Winckler from satellite Czechoslovakia.

Thus, in effect, this dyed-in-the-wool Red will be Cole's boss.

Now the Kremlin, through its long-time henchman, is adroitly maneuvering for additional administrative control.

Their Scheme. To gain that, the Soviet bloc has come up with the stratagem of demanding that Winckler, instead of Cole, be empowered to name the Deputy Directors.

Now the Reds know they won't get away with that bold proposal. They are fully aware they would be heavily outvoted in the 23-member Board of Governors. The Communists are using it for trading purposes.

By demanding everything, they figure they will garner an extra large helping.

That is the Russian bloc will wind up with several or more of these potent jobs.

And they will be potent, as indicated by the fact that there will be a Deputy Director General in charge of personnel; another for handling fissionable material; to supervise the distribution of isotopes and similar atomic developments; and other deputies dealing with research reactors, the exchange of technicians, etc.

How many of these influential officials will be created is still undetermined. It's still another important issue that's evoking undercover wrangling among the Governors.

The outcome of both these far-reaching matters is being intensely watched by bipartisan leaders of the Joint Atomic Committee.

Reason for their concern was the Reds' coup in making Winckler Board Chairman. This jolting surprise was directly counter to assurances the lawmakers were given a few months previous. In hearings on the IAEA, they were told the U. S. definitely had the votes to elect a "friendly" Board chairman.

How and why a Soviet puppet got this powerful position is now being extensively looked into. Particularly under scrutiny is Atomic Commission Chairman Strauss.

The House Un-American Activities Committee also is looking into that.

It is making a detailed study of Winckler and other communists and supporters in the new International Atomic Energy Agency. A report will be published on them, as part of the committee's "Who Are They" series, giving the background and records of leading Reds.

Joint Committeesmen making no secret of their disapproval of Winckler's Board chairmanship are:

Representatives Carl Durham (D., N. C.), chairman, James Van Zandt (R., Pa.), Melvin Price (D., Ill.), James Patterson (R., Conn.), Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) and Senators John Pastore (D., R. I.) and Albert Gore (D., Tenn.).

George Sokolsky Says...

Soviet History Repeats

Stalin finally cemented his power by the big military purge of 1937. The Red Army had been built by Leon Trotsky, a civilian who wore an army uniform and acted like a world conqueror. It was a difficult army to build because the Bolsheviks feared Napoleonism; they feared the old Czarist officers who might have organized a counter-revolution; in the final analysis, they feared Trotsky.

The leading military man was General Tukhachevsky. When Stalin got rid of Trotsky, Frunze took his place and died within a year. Frunze like Trotsky opposed Stalin and tried to keep the GPU, the secret police, out of the army and failed.

It is impossible to say that Frunze was actually murdered; he suffered from a stomach ulcer and a weak heart and was forced to undergo an operation which he could not take. General Voroshilov, who is now what might be called President of Soviet Russia, took his place. Voroshilov was completely under the domination of Stalin.

General Tukhachevsky, despite Stalin's antagonism to him, fought for the modernization of the Soviet army and in 1934 was able to put through reforms based upon the best achievements of the German army. To study German methods, Tukhachevsky went to Germany, accompanied by Zhukov. Stalin used this visit when he had Tukhachevsky killed as a traitor; but it did not in any way hurt Zhukov.

It was in 1937 that Stalin put on his grand purge which eventually resulted in the purging of 35,000 officers; three out of five marshals, six out of eight generals on the military tribunal, 57 out of 65 Corps commanders, 110 out of 195 divisional commanders. Zhukov survived this purge.

In Stalin's great purge the following senior officers were liquidated: Marshal Tukhachevsky, and the Generals Yakir (commander of the Ukrainian District), Ubovich (commander of the White Russian Military District), Kork (head of the War Academy and Moscow Garrison Commander), Primakov (deputy commander, Khar'kov), Feldman (Red Army Personnel Directorate), Eldeyman (Chemical Warfare) and Putna (formerly military attache in London). Voroshilov, who might have stood up for his colleagues, did not. He let them die and he lived for the great honor of being the factotum head of the Russian state. Zhukov also survived to become the hero of World War II.

What Stalin accomplished was the Stalinization of the army. When the time came, he put on a military uniform, stuck a military decoration on it and looked like a general. All the photographs of the three old and tired men at Yalta show Stalin as a military officer.

But it was not vanity that impelled Stalin to Stalinize the army. It was the need for making it impossible for any opposition to succeed with the aid of the army. The army was infiltrated by the secret police and the generals subordinated themselves to Stalin as though he were a god.

As Stalin aged, he grew more and more suspicious and the focus of his suspicion was on the army until Soviet Russia broke with Hitler and entered upon an alliance with the United States and Great Britain.

Nikita Khrushchev has been very critical of Stalin's conduct, but he has always avoided mention of the role he and Malenkov played as Stalin's executioners. Some of the murdered military officers have posthumously been restored to a good name, although that may not even serve their ghosts.

That a conflict between the army and the party was inevitable appeared in the nature of the character of Khrushchev and Zhukov who started life as a Tukhachevsky man. After the murder of Tukhachevsky, Zhukov became a protégé of Timoshenko who was the military genius of the Russians in World War II.

Stalin feared Zhukov not only because he had been a protégé of Tukhachevsky but because he represented the army as distinct from the party. Zhukov was an element of deviation, of possible counter-revolution.

Nevertheless Khrushchev, needing support in his purge of Malenkov, Molotov, Kaganovich and Shepilov, a purge which must have been wider and broader than we know, turned to Zhukov for temporary aid. Khrushchev does not fear Zhukov; he does fear the West which prefers Zhukov to himself. So Zhukov will have to go as his colleagues went in 1937.

It is just 20 years since Stalin started on the grand purge.

Disagrees With Pastors

The Editor Daily Record Dear Sir:

The article in Tuesday's Record about the Monroe County Ministerial Association endorsing a candidate for Judge left me feeling empty.

I come from a family of Ministers. My great-uncle was a Methodist Minister and head of the International Y. M. C. A., my uncle was a Lutheran Minister of the City of Philadelphia. I am sure they would never have thought of mixing church with politics.

What business do any of our Ministers have putting a stamp of their association's approval on a political candidate? Such an approval must have been on hearsay, and certainly not with the approval of their congregations.

Many of our forefathers came to this country to get away from countries where religion was mixed with politics, and where often there was only one state church. We are all aware that this led to the complete separation of Church and State in America, a principle which has grown stronger as centuries passed and which is now one of the symbols of our democratic society.

I say to those Ministers whose names appeared in the article, "For Shame." You have violated a basic rule of American politics, and in so doing, have hurt your candidate far more than you helped him.

It is good, however, to see that many of our local clergy, including the representatives of several major religions, did not attend the association meeting. They knew by doing so they would be going against their general policy and the policy of the Church. Do the Republicans feel they have an inferior candidate that they have to solicit the help of the Church?

STUART P. PFEIFFER.

Editor, The Record Stroudsburg, Pa. Dear Mr. Editor:

With regard to your editorial in Tuesday's Record, this political bunk about the "sitting judge principle" appears like a local Republican idea. I have not been able to find where the local bar association endorsed this "principle" for a county judge. The local bar association did not endorse anyone for county judge this year.

In our neighboring Northampton County, where there are Democratic Judges seeking re-election, they are violently opposed by Republican candidates. When Honorable Chester Rhodes, a Democrat, ran for re-election in 1954 he was opposed by a Republican candidate.

In Pike County, three attorneys are for the present Judge, and three are for Russell L. Mervine, and one attorney is taking a neutral stand. In fact, two are actively campaigning for Russell L. Mervine.

The State Constitution limits the Supreme Court Judges to one term, the Governor to one term, county treasurers to one term. Just recently the United States Constitution was amended to put a limit of eight years on the President of the United States.

I believe in the two party system. It has kept our country strong and free. I oppose the one party system because we all know what has happened in countries where the voter has no choice, except to vote for one party.

Russell L. Mervine is qualified to be our Judge, because of his keen knowledge of the law. He has practiced law in Monroe County for 34 years, and has had vast experience in trying all kinds of cases in different courts. He has never played an active part in politics and owes no political debts. No one can question his morals, his honesty, his dignity, or his ability.

The local attorneys hold him in such high esteem that he is now serving as President of the Monroe County Bar Association. He is a man of even temperament, understanding disposition, and proved ability; and he has presented a program of needed improvements in our Courts which I, as Democratic County Chairman, proudly endorse.

Van D. Yetter, Jr.

Dear Sir: For the past several weeks I have been reading with much interest the articles and editorials in your paper dealing with the forthcoming election next week. After reading your paper today I feel that it is time for the Democrats to speak out.

Never in all my years of activity in the Democratic Party do I ever recall the Clergy taking such a high handed stroke in politics as they have done (according to the article in your paper of today) in coming out for the sitting judge, who is of the opposition party. They (the clergy) state that judges should be out of politics. If this is so, then why is the church taking an active part in politics?

I do not believe that the church should take sides in politics. Their job is religion, not politics. If a judge is supposed to be non-political then he should have no political affiliation, whatsoever. He should run on a strictly non-partisan ticket and after elected every political religion or has been the case in our county.

I note, too, that several purported good Democrats have come out for the opposition in favor of their candidate for judge. However, in analyzing them over a considerable period of years I cannot recall any single thing that they have contributed to the Democratic party.

As a matter of fact, these same persons, if my memory serves me correctly, have been in the dubious corner in many elections. In my estimation it would be a good thing for the Democratic party if they had their registration corrected.

As to your editorial as to why the Democratic chiefs didn't endorse the sitting judge principle, no man is indispensable and so long as we have a two party system it is the right of the Democrats to run a man of their own political faith. Until such time as judges are selected differently, then we shall continue to run the man of our choice.

There is a free country and neither the church nor the state can control the will of the people. I am sure that loyal Democrats will not be swayed or misled by the Church. I know every true citizen will weigh the qualifications and abilities of our Democratic candidates against the opposition when they go to the polls next Tuesday. If they do this conscientiously then there will be no doubt of the biggest Democratic victory ever in Monroe County.

Dear Editor: The Hamilton Township Parent-Teacher Assn. is looking forward hopefully and anxiously to Tuesday, November 5th, for on that day the voters of Hamilton Township School District and Stroud Union School District will cast their ballots to determine whether or not their respective school districts shall be united.

The successful passage of this referendum will mean the realization of another important phase of a courageous and improved program encouraged by our Organization, designed by our School Directors and supported by the people of Hamilton Township.

The goal of this effort has been to provide our children with a modern educational system which they so rightfully deserve. Two phases of this program have already been completed: 1—modern elementary school has been built and is in operation; 2—our 7th and 8th grade pupils are this year attending Stroud Union High School on a tuition basis the same as our high school students have been attending for over 25 years.

The third phase of this program is the Union of the previously mentioned school districts. This Union will make possible added facilities, standardization of the elementary system, and will assure our junior-senior high school students permanent status in Stroud Union High.

The Hamilton P.T.A. is extending every effort to insure an affirmative vote from Hamilton Township. It is our fervent hope that approval will be forthcoming from Stroud Union voters.

Our organization sincerely believes that both School Districts will benefit from this proposed Union. Hamilton Township and Stroud Union have for many years been united from an occupational and business standpoint. Let us unite our children now and for the future.

Editor, The Daily Record Dear Sir:

Both candidates for Judge in this district have spoken publicly on the problem of juvenile delinquency, and I was horrified to learn that our probation officers get only $1,200.00 a year each.

I recall that neither Judge Shull, whose name has been mentioned in the campaign, nor any previous Judge ever had a full-time secretary. Yet our present Judge has one who gets $3380.00 a year, while we do not have properly-paid probation officers to help with the increasing juvenile delinquency problem.

This calls for a change! I am for Russell L. Mervine for Judge.

Good Evening Ladies!

By Ken Duval Well, I guess I've done it. For a long time I've been crusading against feminine modesty, saying you ladies should leave more to the imagination. I derided the destruction of feminine mystery and kept saying I wanted you to look like women, but moderation was the keynote of my plea.

I must have carried this thing too far. Since I am usually the last to learn things about women (I was 18 before I learned that a chemise is not an amphibious creature found in the Florida swamps), I'm just becoming conscious of the fall styles. I'm sorry I looked. Somebody in Paris apparently has been reading me and is striking back. I, Duval, am tired of looking at the female form (which I don't) I'll wrap it up like a Christmas present and make him guess what's inside, a leading designer must have said to himself. So, he came up with what he calls the "bag look," followed by Revillon, Heim, Rouff, Chanel, Balmain, et al. who produced designs I call the pig-in-a-poke designs.

The trouble with the bag look, in my opinion, is that it's not being taken up by the bags I know, who really should. They look about the same in anything they put on, even $3.98 house dresses. It's the pretty young things with attractive equipment who have gone into hiding like September Morns under a collapsed circus tent, leaving me with only a memory.

I understand, and this is

It's the pretty young things with attractive equipment who have gone into hiding like September Morns under a collapsed circus tent, leaving me with only a memory.

I understand, and this is purely hearsay, that the bag look practically eliminates the need for underwear, especially the restrictive garments that heretofore prevented a lady from having the bag look, which would have made her die of mortification. My refuse collector tells me he has never seen so many girdles in the trash he gathers, some as good as new.

One lady, holding her third martini aloft in a toast, said, "Here's to the bag look. I feel like I was at a party in my nightgown."

A Bicycle Hangar A husband tells me that his little son's birthday was quite an event at his house. His wife had the kid thinking he wasn't going to get a present and about the time he was ready to cry she whisked a bicycle from under her dress, making the kid very happy indeed. Even the husband hadn't suspected. He thought she looked a little queer, but since she is a boney creature he just reasoned that even a Dior creation couldn't take away the hat-rack look she always had.

My naturally optimistic nature makes me look always for at least a smidgeon of balm in Gilead and, while I'm somewhat unhappy over this know-out of feminine charms, I know it is temporary. If I can just live through the winter, I'm sure things will be much more interesting in the spring when the reaction to this thing sets in. The ladies always go to the opposite extremes in styles, and I can hardly wait.

I also see another great possibility, as long as the style lasts. Why should I ever buy a ticket to a football game, a concert or a movie? Why can't I sneak in under that certain party's skirt? Nobody would notice.

Economists Unalarmed By Trends

By Henry Cathcart Central Press Writer

Washington — Government economists are not alarmed by current economic trends in the U. S. and States, which have reflected, in some minds exaggerated, by stock market activity. They readily concede that rising production and consumer indices have reached a plateau, but stress that it's a pretty high plain. There is considerable debate going on over the restrictive money policies currently being pursued by the Federal Reserve board, which run all the way to the belief in some financial quarters that the board is fostering a "slight" recession now to avoid a big crash in the future.

Much of the American economy is really feeling the pinch of the board's tight money policy. The basic industries, such as housing, auto sales and industrial plant expansion, are feeling it most directly, of course.

All of this does not impress government economists nearly as much as the alternative, a really lively inflation spiral. However, the economists are becoming concerned about conditions next spring, and so, incidentally, are the politicians.

They fear that the coming winter months will provide no real gauge of the severity of Federal Reserve board money restrictions on new housing starts, industrial building and auto sales. All of these basic industries depend on a spring upsurge.

Should the buying and ordering bulge fail to develop, it will be too late for the board to relax its restrictions and, some economists fear, this miscalculation could put the country in a recession reminiscent of 1953-1954. Washington politicians who have been following economic trends can't help but project its effect on the 1958 congressional elections.

Trouble Brewing.—The Democratic party appears to be headed for trouble as a result of the new policy statements laid down by its advisory council. Causing most of the fireworks is the council's plea for prompt enforcement of the new civil rights law. This threatens to force the party split in the South wide open.

The southern wing of the party has been a little hot under the collar ever since the civil rights bill was passed and now the council's statement appears to be a slap in the face for Dixie Democrats.

Party—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Greene entertained at a masquerade party.

MYSTERY MAN in last night's Halloween parade turned out to be R. D. Everitt, 4½ years old. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland D. Everitt Sr., 62 Broad St., Stroudsburg. R. D. visited Daily Record office before the parade; "stood" willingly for this formal portrait. Note fur headdress. Known as a "busby" it was regal and shining enough to make the most expert hustler proud. (Staff Photo by Randolph)

'Her Majesty's Guardman Rides In Local Parade

Leonard Randolph

THE DOOR to the Daily Record office opened at 6:35. A slight, red-coated and seemingly top-heavy "English Guardsman" darted in, surveyed the room briskly, wheeled on one heel and darted out again.

In less than a minute he was back again. Stepping with clockwork military precision to the center of the editorial room he clicked to a halt in front of my desk.

The gold braid on his shoulders jiggled a bit as he bobbed his head in stiff salute. The arms were held rigidly at the side, the left hand resting gently on the gold-plated scabbard which hung from his belt.

Most prominent feature of all, of course, was the huge befringed headpiece he wore. As busbies go this was a handsome busbie; black-furred, royally shining and in perfect taste; austere without any trace of ostentation.

Half-Masked
The face was masked over the eyes with a half-covering which left the lips the freedom necessary for normal speech. Pursing his mouth slightly (with a trace of a grin gleaming through) the "guardsman" said: "Excuse me, sir, but could you introduce me to Mr. Randolph?"

Assured that he was addressing same already, the young man again bowed from the waist in a manner which hinted at years of training in the diplomatic corps. He was, indeed, an ambassador without portfolio.

"I am a member of Her Majesty's Guard," the voice said. "And I am here to ride in the Halloween parade."

It was readily apparent that this "parade" was no trifling matter. There were deep hints that it was an international affair, colored by the intrigues and machinations of foreign nations, its romance and charm heightened by the element of "mystery" inherent in the fledgling member of the Royal Court's honor guard.

Now that the "mystery" was about to be stripped away the brightly-costumed guardsman appeared to regret its impending loss. Behind that mask lurked the secrets of empires, one could almost feel.

But once his name had been requested he gave it, only a trifle reluctantly.

"My name is Artie Everitt," he said.

"How do you do, Artie?"
R. D.—Not Artie
There was a pause. Then, very patiently: "Not ARTIE. R. D."

Once this was straightened out we arranged for a photograph. It was a singularly painless "sitting." R. D. was hoisted up and asked to stand (in formal pose and array) on a stool. He obliged willingly, took directions easily.

"We'd better not take too long," he said as the camera was focussed. "I've got to be in that parade and it's liable to be starting afore long." (A note of quiet anxiety was added.) "It might even be over."

Another assurance was necessary. The parade didn't start until 7:30. "Oh, well, then, I've got lots of time," R. D. said. The remainder of the photographic session was rather uneventful. R. D. adopted his best military demeanor and out-stared the camera for a couple of seconds. Did he want

Rally Fails, Stock Prices Closed Mixed

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—A pretty good stock market rally failed today, leaving prices mixed as profit-taking held away almost three sessions of rising prices.

Volume was a moderate 2-170,000 shares compared with 2-069,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 66 stocks rose 20 cents to $138.30 with the industrials up 40 cents, the rails down 70 cents and the utilities up 30 cents.

Of 1,176 issues traded, 500 advanced and 389 declined. There were 33 new lows for the year and one new high, Smith, Kline & French.

The most active stock was Vertigies-Camagary Sugar, up 1/2 at 97, on 46,000 shares. Second was Loews, off 1/4 at 11 1/2 on 40,500 shares. Third was Boeing, unchanged at 34 1/2 on 33,400 shares.

Next came Bethlehem Steel, off 1/4 at 40 1/2, and Standard Oil New Jersey, unchanged at 53 1/2.

Bell Aircraft Up
Bell Aircraft was up 1 and actively traded in continued response to its production-line output of the "Rascal" guided missile. American Home Products dropped 1/2 on the news of its higher dividend intentions.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred closed with a net loss of 4 at 36 1/2 after enjoying a 2-point rise early in the day following word that an ICC examiner had recommended approval of a plan which would give preferred stock first call on earnings for some years.

Ford gained 1/2, United Aircraft 1/2, General Dynamics 1/2, Amerasia 1 and Texas Co. 1/2. Du Pont lost 1/2, Sunshine Mining 1/2, Kennecott 1/2, Anaconda 1/2, North American Aviation 1/2 and Gulf Oil 1/2.

Irregular
On the American Stock Exchange prices were irregular on volume of 740,000 shares compared with 620,000 yesterday. Gainers included Imperial Oil, Woodley Petroleum and Electric Bond & Share. Among losers were International Petroleum, British Petroleum and Hall Lamp.

Corporate bonds were higher on average. Trading was moderately active.

U. S. government bonds inched higher in light transactions over the counter.

Court Approves Fourth Trustee

SCRANTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—In an opinion handed down in Lackawanna County Orphans' Court, Judge James F. Brady has approved the nomination of P. J. McGough, Toronto, Canada, as the fourth trustee of two funds set up by the will of Amedeo Obici, Wilkes-Barre, peanut magnate.

Unanimous approval by three surviving trustees was required or the court would have appointed a successor trustee to the late C. H. Murden at the direction of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which ruled that the specific trusts are private.

Involved are the so-called friends and relatives trust and the Angeline Obici Sanguliano Trust, consisting of 11,275 and 2,200 shares of stock, respectively, in Planters Nut and Chocolate Co. There are about 42 individual beneficiaries of the former trust.

Tough Talk Of Cold War Revived In United Nations General Assembly

By William N. Oatis
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—The tough talk of the cold war has been revived lately in the U.N. General Assembly.

An example came in debate on Syria's Soviet-backed complaint that Turkey has massed troops on the frontier for an attack.

When Turkey asked for a delay to allow time for mediation, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused the Turks of wanting to delude public opinion.

Red Smokescreen
"They want to throw dust into the eyes of naive and credulous people, while at the same time they engage in their own business, which is the preparation of aggression against the independent state of Syria," he said.

The Assembly president, Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, entered a procedural point. Gromyko wagged his finger and retorted:

"If I feel the need for advice, I shall request it. I believe it would be better, Mr. President, if you did not waste your energy on interrupting statements and if you focused these energies on a correct and organized way of conducting these meetings."

Later Gromyko said the United States "is openly inciting Turkey to attack Syria." He concluded that what was needed was "to withdraw the Turkish forces from the Syrian frontier and to stop blackmailing Syria—to stop the sabre-rattling."

U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge put in a few words of his own. He spoke of "the sincerity of the Soviet contention." He said the Soviet Union had gobbled up Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania and Albania. He accused it of butchering Hungary.

Bully Turkey
At a later meeting Lodge said the Russians "want to bully Turkey with threats of extinction" and "want to blacken the name of the United States."

Of the Soviet Union he observed: "Here is the chronic law-breaker, not only seeking to be regarded as a good citizen, but actually trying to sit in the judge's seat and sentence the whole law-abiding community to jail."

"Here is the arsonist, trying his best to start another fire, and demanding the right to lead the fire brigade."

Turkish Ambassador Seyfullah Esin declared certain Syrian charges were devoid of good faith. Syrian Foreign Minister Salah Bitar spoke of "a slanderous campaign" against Syria.

Gromyko in his last appearance refrained from repeating his earlier threat that Russia would "take all the necessary steps to extend assistance to the victim of aggression" in case of an attack on Syria. And Communist chief Nikita Khrushchev said Tuesday night there would not be a war.

This led some to hope that the tough talk and the cold war atmosphere were on the way out.

It's Experience that counts!

If you were going to build a house would you want EXPERIENCED carpenters, painters and plumbers . . . men who have learned their trade, or an apprentice who was starting on his first job?

If you were going to the hospital to have an operation would you want an EXPERIENCED surgeon, one who has learned his profession or an apprentice who had never been in an operation room before?

The questions answer themselves. In each case you would choose the man with EXPERIENCE, the man who had learned his trade, not an apprentice.

To be a competent judge you have to learn your trade from EXPERIENCE, the same as you learn to be a competent mechanic or surgeon. During his term of office as your judge, Fred W. Davis has learned his trade. He is a master mechanic, not an apprentice.

On election day you have a choice—the master mechanic or the apprentice . . . the man who has been tested and found fit, or an unknown quantity. THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR EXPERIENCE! Vote for and re-elect Fred W. Davis to be Judge of the courts of Monroe and Pike Counties.

Piano Store Locates In East Borough

THOSE whose talents "lean" toward the musical will be interested in the grand opening of Sleep's Piano & Organ Co. in East Stroudsburg. Located at 9 Washington St., the new showroom will feature world famous Wurlitzer Pianos and Organs.

Grand opening activities will include student musicians on hand to play and demonstrate the instruments for the enjoyment of all visitors. Jay Sleep, proprietor, has arranged for free passes to the Grand Theatre for the first 100 children under 12 who are accompanied by their parents.

Facilities at the new establishment will include music rooms for teaching, a mobile truck unit for display and delivery of pianos and organs to the home. A special "package deal" is available for the student for less material, qualified instruction and the rental of a piano for use in the student's home.

A program of teaching is available for all age groups with Wallace Hornbrook instructing the 4-to-7-year-old group.

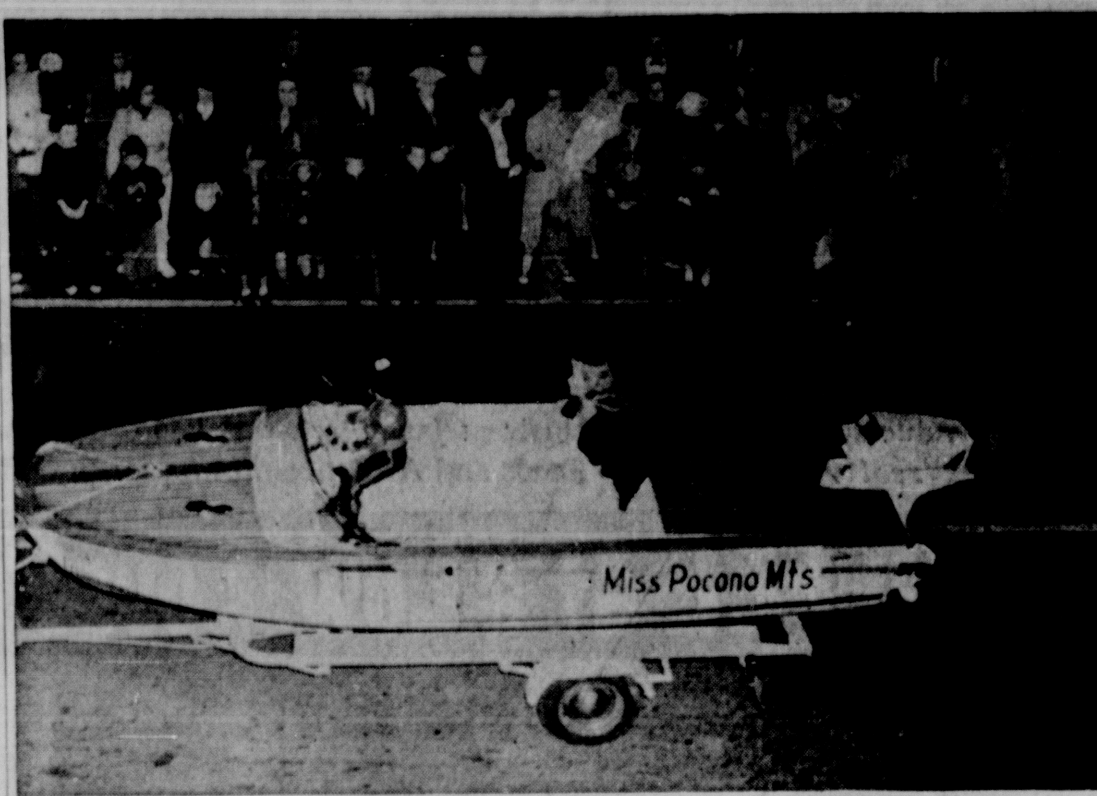

Sleep, proprietor of the new store, lives presently in Wind Gap and was formerly associated with Krash Piano & Organ Co. of Easton and Allentown.

PENNSYLVANIA Power & Light Co. will continue its program for educational assistance for a fifth year, it was announced yesterday by Charles E. Oakes, PP&L president.

Once again young men and women from PP&L's service area whose parents are customers of the company will have the opportunity to compete for six scholarships. The grantees of the scholarships will be able to attend any of 15 colleges and universities in Central Eastern Pennsylvania where they will be free to choose any four-year course of study leading to a degree. At least one grantee will be a PP&L employee's son or daughter.

In announcing the continuation of PP&L's program begun in 1954, Oakes pointed out that young people owe it to themselves and their fellow citizens to do everything in their power to seek a college education. More than ever before, our nation today is looking to college-trained young people for the thought, evaluation and creativity which are vital ingredients in the building of a continually better civilization, he said.

He went on to say that many

'Horse And Buggy' Design Of Schools Hit By Planner

ERNEST J. KUMP of Palo Alto, Calif., a noted school architect and planner has labeled Pennsylvania schools as in the "horse and buggy" era in design and construction.

He expressed the opinion at the annual forum of the Pennsylvania Society of Architects at Wernersville early this month.

He said the staggering need for new schools can only be met by a revolutionary, new approach to school design.

Innovator of many contemporary school design principles, Kump stated the solution is not through following costly present-day design and construction methods, but rather through building basic structural units or "space modules."

The 45-year-old architect emphasized that the need for school buildings will never be met by construction on a custom basis and by following antiquated people are needed with knowledge of the sciences, business, government and engineering to assure . . . through imagination, research and development . . . the nation's continued progress in this era of opportunity.

Lions Club Accepting Eye Gifts

WALTER R. Hicks, of Easton, president of the Northeast Pennsylvania Lions Eye Bank, said yesterday the organization is now ready to accept eye donations throughout the six county area currently being serviced by the organization. Those counties are Northampton, Lehigh, Pike, Schuylkill, Monroe and Carbon.

Special postcards for donors have been prepared for all people interested in donating their eyes upon their death. The 62 Lions Clubs within the Lions district 14-K covering six counties, are all ready to accept donors.

Hicks said many people and organizations throughout the area are interested in the eye bank and its objectives. He added that due to recent eye research and the advancement of techniques used in transplant surgery, corneas of one eye can easily be transplanted to another eye.

Generally Successful
Such operations are successful in four out of five cases, Hicks reported.

The functioning of the eye bank was further strengthened recently with the establishment of a sub-station at Pottsville, where the Pottsville General Hospital has agreed to assist the organization in its work. Other sub-stations are to be established soon.

Anybody can donate their eyes; there is no age limit, said Hicks.

greater standardization of building parts toward more economic construction, he suggested that these school units could eventually be energized by atomic power.

Kump disclosed this basic design would give the school planner even "more freedom in design and expression." He cited that designers are now dictated to on the placement of water lines and other utilities.

Speaking of the JUVENILE COURT

Did you know . . .

that all violations of law by children under 18 years of age come within the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court?

that, as President Judge of our courts, Fred W. Davis must take charge of all Juvenile Court hearings, which hearings, under the law, must be conducted privately?

that a careful investigation is made by Judge Davis, his associate judges and the probation officers before a juvenile hearing is held?

that at the hearing the parents and child meet with the court, usually in the Judge's office, where the evidence is heard and the Judge talks with the parents and child, and helps them work out their problem?

that Judge Davis has enlisted and welcomed the aid of many civic and welfare organizations of Monroe and Pike Counties in working out the problem of rehabilitation of youthful offenders?

that Judge Davis has spent many hours . . . time in conferring with, and speaking to, groups and organizations of interested citizens on juvenile matters?

that Judge Davis has served actively as a member of the Pennsylvania Association of Juvenile Court Judges, a body consisting of 83 Pennsylvania Juvenile Court Judges organized to study and combat the problem of juvenile delinquency and rehabilitation? . . . and that he was recently elected president of this important group of judges?

that, although there are problems involving juveniles in Monroe and Pike Counties, and occasional violations of the law, most of the problems and violations are of the less serious nature, and, by and large, our children are on the right track—but that those who falter by the wayside are given kind, understanding, patient consideration by Judge Davis and his associates to the end that, in most instances, they are returned to their families to become good citizens?

COLLEGE?

Pennsylvania Power & Light Company's program of educational assistance could help answer that question for some deserving young man or woman.

Perhaps you have a youngster, a high school senior, who will be eligible for college in 1958. Or, perhaps you know of some other young person who will soon be ready to enroll in an institution of higher learning.

If you do, tell them about PP&L's program for educational assistance, under which six scholarships are available each year to young people whose parents are PP&L customers.

Have them ask at their high school or nearest PP&L office for a copy of "Opportunity", the Company's scholarship brochure. Have them discuss the program with their high school principal or guidance teacher.

Remember—a college education opens the way to a better job and better way of life. It is an investment in a young person's future that really pays dividends.

Each scholarship winner will have $500 paid towards his or her tuition each year. Each may choose to attend any one of 15 Central Eastern Pennsylvania colleges, and may select any four-year college course which leads to a baccalaureate degree.

In addition to the amount payable on behalf of the grantee, PP&L will pay a like amount to the college or university which the grantee is attending for its use in whatever manner the institution may feel will contribute most toward the realization of worthy educational objectives.

Delk Named Director Of Craft Shop

EARL C. DELK, of 36 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, has been appointed director of the craft shop at the YMCA, General Secretary John R. Wilson said yesterday.

Delk is now working on the room where the shop will be located. He is setting up the tools and equipment needed to operate the program. They include power tools such as wood lathe, two jigsaws, a bench saw, hand saw, sanders, and polishers. The placement of motors and work benches will take several evenings; also, supplying the proper current for operating the machines is being studied.

Delk has had wide experience in craft work and in addition to woodwork he is planning leather craft, ceramics, molding, etc., Wilson said.

The craft shop will be open two nights every week. Crafts will be conducted for boys and girls, and if there is an interest by adults, a class will be organized for them.

Rev. Cairns Reports On Enrollment

STATISTICS released in the 1958 Yearbook of American Churches indicate the Assemblies of God is the 10th ranking denomination in Sunday School enrollment in the United States.

This was revealed yesterday by Rev. J. Russell Cairns, pastor of the First Pentecostal Assembly of God, Stokes Ave., South Stroudsburg. The local church has a current Sunday School enrollment of 85.

The revised church figures also placed the denomination eighth in number of ministers, ninth in church, 28th in church membership, seventh in Sunday School workers and teachers, and eighth in number of Sunday Schools.

The Assemblies of God is the fifth largest missionary denomination in the world and stands first in number of foreign Bible schools, Rev. Cairns said. He remarked that growth of the denomination can be credited to an active home missions and Sunday School program.

The Assemblies of God has averaged opening one church a day for the last six years.

Success Of U. S. Satellite To Be Known In 10 Minutes

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP)—Success or failure of the first U.S. attempt to launch a fully instrumented satellite on an orbit 300 miles above the earth will be known 10 minutes after the three-stage rocket blasts off its firing platform in Florida.

That's all the time it will take the 11-ton Vanguard to reach orbital altitude and velocity and start its 21-pound, 20-inch sphere spinning on an egg-shaped path around the earth.

The first attempt is set for next March.

27,000-Pound Thrust

A blast of power from its first-stage rocket engine will lift Vanguard from its firing stand at Cape Canaveral, Fla. It will take 27,000 pounds of thrust to get the 22,000-pound monster off the ground.

Slowly and dramatically, the 72-foot rocket will rise vertically into the air—if all goes as planned. From the moment it starts the ascent, the scientists and engineers who conceived, designed, built and threw the switch to fire Vanguard will be powerless to correct the instructions they already will have imparted to the space giant.

But Vanguard will be doing its own thinking.

Unlike systems which require ground radar to track and ground computers to radio steering commands, the Vanguard guidance system will be entirely within the rocket. The course and timing of separations will be pre-set in Vanguard's electronic brain. Any deviations will automatically trigger a correcting control to return the rocket to its predetermined path.

No Stabilizers

Both the first-stage rocket engine and the second-stage engine, built by Aerojet General Corp. of Azusa, Calif., will be mounted on gimbals, or universal joints. This will allow them to swivel three degrees in any direction.

Since Vanguard has no stabilizing fins—a weight economy—the gimbal mounted engines will provide not only steering but stability control. The thrust cylinders through which the burning fuel exhausts extend aft of the two rocket stages. These are the parts which swivel. A slight change from the pre-set course automatically touches off controls which will tilt the thrust cylinder and alter the course of the rocket.

Ten seconds after firing, Vanguard will have climbed a mile straight up. Its autopilot brain will then incline the rocket gradually on its easterly curving trajectory out over the Atlantic Ocean.

Just 2½ minutes after firing, the rocket will have reached an altitude of 35 to 40 miles and will be traveling at 3,700 m.p.h. At this point, the 44-foot-long first-stage rocket has used up its fuel and is separated from the second and third stages by six explosive bolts. Stage 1 falls into the Atlantic Ocean.

Second Stage

The second-stage rocket engine immediately takes over. Seconds later the titanium-tipped nose cone, made of a metal-hard asbestos plastic, splits in half and falls away. This leaves the gleaming satellite exposed. The nose cone, in addition to streamlining the over-all launching vehicle, shields the satellite from frictional heat during its climb through the dense lower atmosphere. No longer needed above 40 miles, it is dropped to save weight.

The second stage burns out in slightly less than two minutes. At this point—approximately four minutes after takeoff—the rocket has almost tripled its speed and has more than tripled its altitude in soaring 140 miles up and 200 miles east of the launching site. Its course is now pointed more toward the horizontal and its speed is about 9,000 m.p.h., or about 2½ miles each second.

There is no separation at this burnout because the brain of the second stage is still necessary to the third for guidance. The rocket has enough velocity to carry it to the desired 300-mile orbital altitude. So it is allowed to coast for the next 3½ minutes.

Small jets exhausting propane gas control pitch and roll during this powerless period.

When Vanguard reaches the end of its coasting phase, about 7½ minutes will have elapsed from takeoff. The rocket will be 877 miles east of the launching site and at 300 miles altitude. Its speed will have slowed only slightly to about 8,500 m.p.h. Its course is now parallel to the horizon.

Delay Fuse

A delay fuse is started for the third-stage rocket engine and with this last "thinking" act, the 31-foot second stage is separated and slowed slightly by retro-rockets which act as brakes. Lacking orbital velocity, it falls to earth, dropping into the ocean about 1,500 miles east of the launching site.

Stage No. 3, ignited by the delay fuse, is soaring across the sky at 300 miles altitude. It takes just about a minute to burn out and, in so doing, boosts its speed to the required orbital velocity of 17,727 m.p.h.

The elapsed time from takeoff is 9 minutes 45 seconds; the distance from the launching site 995 miles. At this point, a spring mechanism will separate the satellite from its rocket and nudge it ahead to climax the launching.

Like its Russian cousin, the U.S. satellite will have its spent rocket bottle as a space companion, thus providing two satellites for the price of one—at least for a time.

Analomink

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bates and Florence and Robert attended the home-coming service at Neola Methodist Church. The guest speaker was Major A. Marland Shoemaker, chaplain in the U. S. Army in Washington, D. C. Rev. Shoemaker was minister of Analomink and Cherry Valley churches in 1929.

Question Box

F. M. of Stroudsburg: "A friend told me I could force hyacinths indoors without keeping them in a dark cool room. I tried it last year and failed. Please tell us what treatment the hyacinth needs for indoor blooming."

Hyacinths will not flower unless you give them the two month cool storage treatment. If you use the hyacinth glass, place the bulb in it, fill with water up to but not touching the base of the bulb. Store in a cool dark closet for about two months. When the roots have filled the glass and the flower bud is out of the neck of the bulb (1½" high) bring into partial light. After ten days, place in a bright and sunny window.

Mrs. S. E. of Delaware Water Gap: "I have a Boston Fern (Nephrolepis exaltata—according to my garden book) which has suddenly developed two kinds of leaves. One is the usual type of leaves and the others very fine, delicate and feathery, all coming from the same plant. Is this unusual?"

This happens quite often. The Boston Fern which you correctly named has many horticultural variations, and one of these is the Whitman's Boston Fern which you probably have. All Boston ferns make ideal house plants, but the one you have is quite outstanding.

Ferns all take the same requirements. A light fibrous soil, one that's moist but never too wet or soggy. Never expose to direct sunlight. Ferns can be repotted any time, especially if they are potbound. Be sure to include some peat, compost or woods' earth in the mixture.

Syringing the fern once a week or so to keep down red spider or any scale insects that might happen to attack it. One of the worst enemies of ferns is wet feet—so do not set a fern pot in a jardiniere as the air cannot get to the roots and leaves will turn yellow.

The missile was described as a version of the Army's Redstone. The original Redstone had a 200-mile range, but the Jupiter-A is reported to be an improved model with a considerably lengthened range.

Cities Ask Increased Air Service

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—A transportation consultant commented today that communities seeking air service would like to have "a flight to everywhere all the time."

The consultant, James C. Buckley of New York City, nevertheless held that the client, the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport in Pennsylvania, should have the additional airline service it sought.

Buckley was one of several witnesses at today's session of a continuing hearing on local airline patterns in the north-eastern states.

Mount Pocono Area

The Albany phase of the hearing ends Friday. Among the communities to be represented is the Pocono Mountains area, which will present briefs on behalf of commercial airline service upon completion of expansion of runways at the Mount Pocono Airport.

The hearing will be resumed Nov. 12 in Washington, D. C. Examiner John A. Cannon is presiding.

Buckley appeared as a witness for the Lehigh-Northampton Airport Authority, which is asking local carrier service for the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport.

Appeals for improved service also were entered by the counties of Lackawanna and Luzerne, Pa., and the communities of Massena, Poughkeepsie and Rome, N. Y. All said local industry needed new or revised service by airlines.

Lacked Service

Buckley said that many passengers in the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton area had to travel to other airports for service not provided at their local airport.

William H. Dapper, CAB counsel commented that, in varying degrees, that was the situation at virtually all airports except New York City.

Philip V. Mattes, county solicitor of Lackawanna County, said the primary goal of Scranton-Wilkes-Barre airport was service to southern New England that "would by-pass the New York City bottleneck."

Anti-Gambling Drive

BOSTON (AP)—Massachusetts Protestant churches are pressing a campaign against gambling in the state. Ten thousand copies of a condensed version of a state crime commission report on gambling are being circulated among Protestant churches by the Massachusetts Council of Churches.

This was announced today by the Defense Department, which passed along the word from the test center at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The center said the missile was destroyed by the range safety officer when instrumentation disclosed a malfunction. Watches at the scene saw the missile blast off from its launching pad at 11:50 p.m. climb 30,000 feet and then veer to the southeast. It was in sight 2½ minutes.

After the missile disappeared, a booster stage fell toward the ocean. It could be seen by means of flashlight flares attached to it for tracking purposes.

The missile was described as a version of the Army's Redstone. The original Redstone had a 200-mile range, but the Jupiter-A is reported to be an improved model with a considerably lengthened range.

New Field Opened In Heart Study

By RAY HENRY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 31 (AP)—A New York doctor said today that his studies opened a new field in the search for prevention of attacks and hardening of the arteries—the nation's No. 1 killer.

Dr. Leo Gitman, senior research associate for the Messinger Research Laboratories at Beth-E Hospital in Brooklyn, reported his finding to the 10th annual meeting of the Gerontological Society, Gerontology is the scientific study of old age.

In discussing the studies—carried on jointly by Gitman and Dr. I. J. Greenblatt, also of the Messinger Laboratories—Gitman said his research is still in the early experimental stage.

"It's far too early," he said, "to even consider the use of our method on any wide basis on human beings."

Control Fat In Blood

The method, he said, involves the control of fat in blood. Too much blood fat is generally recognized as the main condition related to heart attacks and hardening of the arteries.

Gitman's studies, which were carried out with humans and animals, indicate that "by giving vitamin E in very large doses we could reduce the level of blood fat in a high percentage of cases in humans."

The most readily available source for vitamin E, he said, is wheat germ oil.

Further proof that he may be on the right track, Gitman said, is that this research indicates that possibly the lack of vitamin E in the human body causes the fat in blood to increase.

He said that so far his research hasn't turned up any chemical except vitamin E which has the same effect in reducing the fat in blood. Other chemicals, which outside the human body appear to have the same chemical action as vitamin E, actually increased the fat in blood.

Still Experimenting

"Let me emphasize," Gitman said, "that we are still in the early experimental stages in developing our method of reducing fat in the blood. We can't be too sure of our results because they aren't yet conclusive and too few cases have been investigated."

He said that in his five months of experimentation there appeared to be no side reactions on humans to whom vitamin E was given.

Gitman is also medical director of the Brooklyn Hebrew Home and Hospital for the Aged.

SAC Jets Plan Low-Level Trips

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 31 (AP)—Strategic Air Command headquarters said today that new areas of the country may soon see jet bombers in low-level flight over farmsteads and villages.

As part of low-level navigation training SAC is planning to send out large numbers of B47 six-jet medium bombers to fly at 500-foot altitudes in daylight and under clear weather conditions.

The routes have not yet been determined but, with the approval of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, they will be planned to avoid heavily populated areas and flight obstructions.

In some instances it may be possible to alert specific areas before the exercises start, but in others the low-flying B47s may come as a surprise.

Although the B47 is one of the world's fastest medium bombers, it is not supersonic and no sonic booms will be heard as a result of these flights, SAC headquarters said.

First Lady Shows New Beaver Coat

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower held a special White House session for photographers today and posed with two gifts—a new beaver coat and a pink pot-holder.

The coat was made from 17 pelts given her by Maine fur trappers, who hope that by wearing it she will boost their slumping beaver trade.

The potholder, in Mamie's favorite color, was made by 7-year-old Jeanne Naspo of Montclair, N.J., "the arthritis child of the year," who gave it to Mrs. Eisenhower to launch a nationwide November campaign of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation.

The showing of the coat, a three-quarter model with rolled cuff sleeves, valued by the gift-givers at about $1,800, came at a time when Washington is amid new discussions about official gift-taking.

Pelts Only Gift

The White House carefully pointed out that Mrs. Eisenhower had received only the 17 pelts as a gift from the fur trappers of Maine and the Maine Trappers Assn., a group of some 350 trappers. Mrs. Eisenhower paid $385 to have the pelts made into the coat.

Jasper Haynes and Archie Clark of Millinocket, Maine, who came to represent the fur trappers, said Mrs. Eisenhower had first turned down their gift offer. But, Haynes said, she changed her mind after he sent her an appeal written on birch bark, telling of the plight of the trappers and asking her to help out.

Later, after posing for pictures accepting the potholder, the First Lady suggested that Jeanne and her mother, Mrs. August F. Naspo, take a special tour of the White House.

Pasta stamps are backed with a glue mixture of cassava and hybrid corn. Both are tasty and nutritious.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who modeled the new coat on the grand staircase in the White House north entrance, did not talk to reporters about the gift.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

I've never known it to fail—comes along a story that nobody else wants, they turn it over to me with the comment—"Look, they ate. This is social", or "They had their wives with them. This belongs on social". I wouldn't be too surprised someday to have them bring me an extra football game, and explain that because they sold hot-dogs, or played such a poor game, or something, it is social.

However, when a really big event comes along, where they eat and have their wives along, and it is really one of THE social events of the year, like the testimonial dinner for Mrs. Ida Kunkle last night, then everybody's claiming the story.

Well, I'll agree that it's a story that belongs on the front page, but I can tell you, for one thing, that last night the "good little black dress" really came into its own.

Mrs. Kunkle, herself, had a very handsome black dress with a brilliant necklace as its only trimming—until they gave her that orchid of course, so big and so white and so beautiful that it needed a black dress to show it off.

It was amazing the amount of variety those little black dresses could achieve. Berenice All and Florence Warner's black was silvered like chain mail. Vi Jones had a collar of white ermine. Ella Flory added a touch of color with the flowers in her chignon.

Some of them had high necks, some boat necks, some square and some scarcely any neckline at all—but all of them made an excellent foil for the decorations of red carnations, in white vases on Red Crosses. The speakers table was also in red and white with handsome red crosses on the white candelabra, and a big red K.

One of the curious ones at our table got to investigating those white vases, which looked a little like milk glass. She discovered that the white wasn't in the glass but in the water it held. "Milk of magnesia", was the question. Well, if it was, nobody needed it right then.

Not only because the food was so good, but because it was seasoned with laughter, which everybody knows is the best aid to digestion. It will take a long time before Parke outlives the story about the time he was locked in a clock, or Mrs. Kunkle the one about her visit to a nudist colony.

Anyway, it was a wonderful party, and it couldn't have happened to a nicer person. Now you can turn to Page One.

The San Luis Valley Railroad, 31-mile rail line in Colorado, has received L.C.C. permission to abandon all but two miles of its track. Reason: no finances to buy new motive power.

The total damage in all accidents in the United States in 1956 would have built one million new single family homes or a head of an average cost of $10,600 for each house.

Shrimp Fondue Economical Dish With A Difference

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor
Interested in an economical dish for lunch or supper? Then try this Shrimp Fondue. A small can of shrimp plus a couple of eggs, milk and bread go into it and produce a fluffy, flavorful dish that's thrifty, too.

Use a can of small-sized shrimp for this fondue because they are of good quality and cost less than the larger-sized seafood. There are usually more than four dozen small shrimp in a 4½-ounce can; the shrimp liquid they are packed in is used in the fondue.

Don't hesitate to bake this dish even if there are to be only two of you home for the meal. The fondue reheats extremely well if it is put in the top of a double boiler and allowed to stand over simmering water until hot through. When we did just this we found little of the original puffiness was lost.

Shrimp Fondue
Ingredients: 1 can (4½-ounce) devilled small shrimp, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 9 slices white bread (crusts removed and cut into small squares), 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind, cayenne pepper, 1 tablespoon finely grated onion (pulp and juice), 1½ cups milk (scalded), salt, Tomato Sauce.

Method: Drain shrimp; there should be about ½ cup liquid.

Garments, blankets, shoes are urgently needed for the alleviation of suffering throughout the world among impoverished peoples. Infants' wear is also needed. During Fall house cleaning many usable items of clothing, not locally needed, may be found in practically every home.

These accumulations are to be placed in a bag or carton and brought to the north bell-rope vestibule of Grace Church anytime at the individual's convenience. A sizeable amount of garments has already accumulated and Pastor Wunder is hopeful that a double amount may be brought in during the coming month. The church is open seven days a week around the clock for the convenience of its members.

Wise Parent Understands Love At 16

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M.D.

"Alice was in her room dressing to go out. 'What, out again tonight?' asked Mother. 'Is it Bob?'"

"Of course, who else do you suppose I'd be going with?" "Well, I wouldn't know. Thought maybe you'd like a change of scene."

"Mother, there are times I think you have never lived. Bob is absolutely the most marvelous boy. He is very intelligent, he just knows everything and he's so much fun. Someday I'm going to marry him."

"Oh are you in love with him?" "Yes, I am, and there is nothing you can do to stop me."

"Alice, dearie, don't be so belligerent. I think being in love is the most wonderful feeling in this world. I'm glad you're in love."

"Oh, Mommie, you're wonderful!" And Alice threw her arms around her mother's neck. A minute before she'd looked as though she could have punched her.

Sense of Humor
Alice and her mother had always been on good terms but lately Mrs. Woodward did feel Alice was certainly difficult. Her moods swung from elation to despair over what seemed the most trivial of events. However, Mrs. Woodward made a lot of allowances, and maintained her sense of humor.

Now the girl was in love, thought Mrs. Woodward. That was all right. Being loved is a proof of a girl that she's attractive and loving in return is evidence of being grown-up. Both are vitally needed feelings for a young fledgling.

If parents can see in these early experiments in the world the need young adolescents have to prove themselves it's easier to go along with them. The teenager is not ready to leave his home yet—not unless the attitude of the parents is so antagonistic that he feels thrust out.

Loose Rein
If parents try to hold their teenagers down with rigid restrictions, if they disparage their efforts to become adult, the youngsters are all too likely to turn whole soul and body to the object of their first love.

"Here is the only person who understands me. He cares what happens, he wants me to have a good time." And by contrast such a girl feels that her parents want to keep her a baby, they don't care if she is miserable and so we have the rebellion of youth.

The Woodward's were wise

Games were played and refreshments in keeping with the Halloween season were served.

Those present were Patricia Cramer, Leigh Cramer, Carl Cramer, Pamela Reimer, Curtis Reimer, Craig Newton, Lynn Newbaker, Glenwood Horn, Bruce Horn, Jackie Horn, Scott Horn, Betsy Repash, Susan Hunt, Sandra Hunt, Floyd Hunt, Mary Encke, Evelyn Batchlor, Darius Batchlor, Dana Delp, Lauren Delp, Jeffrey Delp, Cassandra Kurts, Guy Kurts, Jeff Hamill, Blaine Hahn, Martha Stiles, Diana Stiles, John Barstman, Patricia Hughes, Virginia Lee Behn, Donald St. Claire, and Linda Patti. and thoughtful parents. Alice felt her mother approved of her and so she approved of herself. She loved Bob but because he wasn't just everything in life to her she could have a little bit of objectivity toward him.

Mrs. Woodward guided Alice with a loose rein. She found out gently where the kids were going, when they expected to be back. She made home a comfortable easy place for them to be together, but didn't expect them to stay there all the time. She didn't hesitate to say "no" when she felt it was necessary and because the "no's" did have sense Alice not only accepted them but gained a sense of safety and security in the knowledge that her parents cared about her.

"the friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

My appreciation goes today to Sterling Strauser for one of the best chuckles I've had this otherwise moody week.

It seems that several years ago I was invited to attend a breakfast meeting in our store at which time an insurance company representative addressed our Wyckoff drivers, and presented them with safety awards. The speaker was a young man named Frank Gaurvy, who later appeared on our Wyckoff Shopper broadcast, and was interviewed in the Wyckoff Shopper column. Frank has blue eyes . . . and somewhere along the way I innocently recorded this fact. In the weeks to come, I am positive he would have liked seeing mine BLACK and blue, because his host of men acquaintances who had read the article, never let him forget my description.

Months later, I was on a train coming from New York when a young man greeted me by name and sat down beside me. It amused him that, while I recognized him, I could not recall just where we had met. Arriving in East Stroudsburg, he reminded me of the meeting at Wyckoff's, and asked me to say hello to Sterling Strauser if I should see him in the store. Sterling and he were fine friends, I gathered, and the former was among those who had been amused by my reference to the blue eyes.

Only once since then, I believe, have I seen Mr. Gaurvy . . . in fact, I gather from a few brief lines written by Mr. Strauser that he is no longer with the same company. In any case, he recently wrote Sterling, in answer to a note in which Strauser had added the postscript: "P. S. Have you seen the Russian Rocket? It was visible here Monday evening and Tuesday evening."

"Never mind the Russian Rocket," Frank replied. "Have you seen Madeline Maloney?"

I am tremendously flattered that Mr. Gaurvy remembers me . . . and I most certainly extend my best wishes to him wherever he is located. But just what is there about me that a mention of Sputnik would call me to mind?????

"Come to think of it," one of my more discerning co-workers says, "you DO look like something from outer space."

This may be true. But for any reason at all, it's nice to say "hello" even by proxy to an old acquaintance.

Now I must hurry off to reserve the first seat on a rocket to the moon. I'll show 'em! There's more than ONE way to be "out of this world."

A LAIRD'S LIFE

A SCOTTISH LAIRD and lady are giving tourists the chance to share their experiences on an estate adjoining Balmoral, the private residence of the British Royal family. This estate, known as Invercauld house, belongs to Capt. Alwynne Arthur Compton Farquharson and his wife. The estate has been opened to paying guests to save it from being taken over because of fantastic operational costs. Mrs. Farquharson, the daughter of a well-known Seattle, Wash., lawyer, came up with the idea of keeping estate as guest house for visitors from her native land.

FOUR OF Marty Baldwin's "boys" are doing all right by themselves in collegiate football ranks. The gridmen, recommended by Baldwin to the coaches at the various institutions, are Danny Sachs, formerly of Emmaus; Nick Patella, ex-East Stroudsburg High luminary; Fred Tilley, of Lansford; and Dave Nevil, of Stroudsburg.

Tilley and Sachs are first-stringers in the Princeton backfield and are leading the Tigers toward another Ivy League crown. Sachs, only a sophomore, got out of a sick bed to score three TDs in Old Nassau's rout of Cornell last Saturday. He's the tailback that Charlie Caldwell, then coach before illness struck him, rated the man to make the Tiger fans forget Dick Kazmaier.

Sachs is leading the Ivy ball-toters with 253 yards rushing on 27 carries. Tilley is fourth in the loop with 241 yards on the ground.

Patella, one of Jack Kist's many proteges who moved on to collegiate grid wars, is a regular guard. His play has been outstanding in an otherwise dismal Wake Forest Deacon season.

Nevil, Baldwin said, has been proclaimed by Lehigh coach Bill Leckonby as the Engineers' best defensive end in the 11 years Bill has been at the Bethlehem school.

Leckonby, right now, rates the former Mountaineer chieftain of retired coach Jerry Stulgaitis as one of the best fullbacks in the East, performing better than expected offensively and as expected great defensively.

Baldwin, the athletic equipment Mr. Fix-It, has helped scores of boys throughout the state get a higher education. His acquaintances in the sports world number the greatest names in athletic history.

Bushkill, of the Pocono Mountain Baseball League is going to stress youth on its ball club next season. This was revealed yesterday when officials of the team announced that all players on the 1957 roster had been given their release.

Bushkill hopes to field a squad of players, averaging under 24 years of age.

A meeting is planned in the near future and "youths" under 24 are urged to sign up for a tryout with the PML nine.

Credit Walt Stem, the former East Stroudsburg High Basketball coach for arranging the first "big" game for the East Stroudsburg Midget Football League All-Stars.

The Esauers will meet Valley Stream, L. I. All-Stars on the New York Suburbans gridiron the week before Thanksgiving.

Stem, a teacher in Valley Stream High, completed negotiations for the locals last week. Valley Stream is a hotbed for midget football. The Pop Warner Conference championships were held there two years ago and the townspeople sent their little gridmen all over the country to play in games.

Jim Harmon, Sr. cut into the lead of average pacesetter, Oscar Stuckey this week in the Industrial Bowling League. Harmon posted a 590 to up his record to 186, three points in back of Stuckey who owns a 189 mark.

Russ Dennis Jr. and Pete Grover are tied for third place with 176 apiece.

Cincy's Robinson Named NL's 'Sophomore Of Year'

Redleg Was Rookie Of Year In '56

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—Cincinnati's Frank Robinson, the National League Rookie of the Year in 1956, advanced to the next plateau by being acclaimed today as the league's outstanding sophomore in 1957.

The 22-year-old youngster outdistanced an impressive crop of second-year eligibles in the annual poll conducted by The Associated Press. Robinson was named on 57 of the 182 ballots cast by members of the Baseball Writers Assn. of America participating in the AP voting.

The Redlegs' outfielder—first baseman had some close competition from pitcher Don Drysdale of the transplanted Brooklyn Dodgers, who will be wearing a Los Angeles uniform in 1958 and second baseman Don Blasingame of the St. Louis Cardinals. Drysdale received 44 votes and Blasingame was the choice of 35 writers.

Beat Jinx
When a player is accorded freshman honors it isn't likely to expect an improved performance from him the following year. Robinson, however, wasn't fazed by the so-called "sophomore jinx" and refused to sit back on his laurels as his 1957 record attests.

The sturdy right-handed swinger hit .322 and tied Hank Aaron of Milwaukee for third place in the league batting race. As a rookie, Robinson batted .290.

Although his home run output dipped from 38 in 1956 to 29 last season, Robinson collected 31 more base hits.

2nd Straight Redleg
This is the second successive year that a member of the Redlegs has been selected sophomore of the year. Catcher Ed Bailey was given the accolade a year ago.

Other players named in the balloting included pitchers Lindy McDaniel of St. Louis and Moe Drabowsky of Chicago 13 each, second baseman Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh 12, outfielder Gino Cimoli of the Dodgers 6 and shortstop Charlie Neal of the Dodgers 1.

Cutter Has Woes Doling Out Tickets

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 31 (AP)—Ever try to fit a size 12 foot into a size 4 shoe?

Probably not, so you have no idea what it's like to try to dole out the choice seats—any ticket for that matter—for an Army-Navy football game.

But Capt. Slade Cutter, a salty submarine officer in his first season as athletic director at the Naval Academy, can tell you all about it.

"It's just impossible," the harassed Cutter said today as he fretted over ticket applications from alumni, congressmen, influential friends of the Navy and just plain citizens who want more tickets than the 49,000 Navy is allotted for the Nov. 30 game in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

What's more, most of them are hoping to get a good seat.

And the captain went on to illustrate what he meant.

"Although the stadium will hold 102,000, only 16,000 seats on each side are between the goal lines. All the rest are in the end zones."

Commercial 'C' To Bowl Today

COMMERCIAL 'C' League will bowl today at Harmon's Recreation, East Stroudsburg, starting at 9:15 p. m. The schedule: Alleys one and two—Lanterman's Funeral Home vs. Tru-Matic.

Alleys three and four—Kream-ice Cream vs. Mosier's Inn. Alleys five and six—Regina Hotel vs. Counterman's Drug Store.

Henrich Named Detroit Coach

DETROIT, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers today signed one-time New York Yankee outfielder Tommy Henrich as their first base coach for the 1958 season.

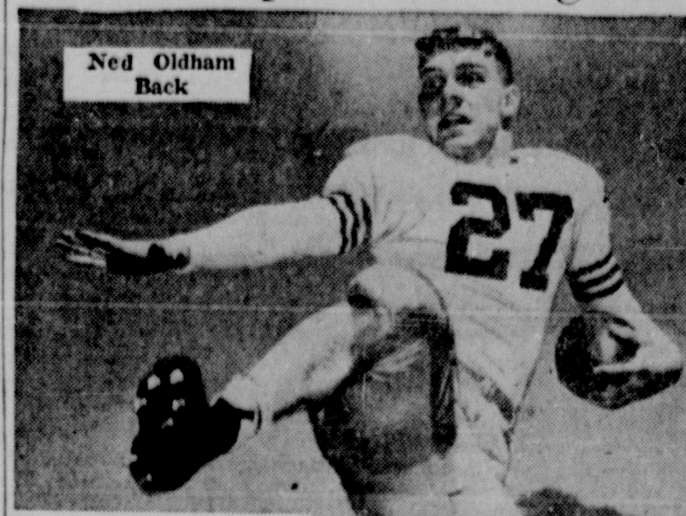

Henrich, who was a coach with the New York Giants last season, replaces Don Lund on the coaching lines. General Manager John McHale said Lund will remain and will undertake "general coaching duties."

Westward Ho For Frick?

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and his office staff may eventually follow the westward trend and move out of New York probably to Chicago.

Frick said the situation has been discussed informally but insisted no definite action had been taken and nobody has suggested that his office move.

UNDERDOGS HAVE HIGH HOPES—Navy, a six-point underdog is putting high hopes on the above four players to life them to victory over Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., tomorrow. The Fighting Irish are unbeaten with a 4-0 record. Navy owns a 5-1 log.

Put Unbeaten Marks On Line

Oklahoma Only One Of Six Major Elevens Seen In Safe Position In Games Tomorrow

By BEN OLAN
The Associated Press

TEXAS A&M, Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Iowa, Auburn and Dartmouth put their undefeated and untied college football records on the line tomorrow and among these highly ranked teams only the Sooners appear to be in a safe position.

The others are in jeopardy. All meet clubs that have been beaten only once.

Oklahoma, whose 45-game winning streak survived an unexpectedly tough challenge by Colorado last week end, invades Kansas State, a three-time loser. Kansas State has been beaten by Wyoming, Nebraska and Colorado.

Texas A&M takes on Arkansas at Fayetteville and the Aggies, tied with Texas for the Southwest Conference lead, expect a hard game and probably will get it. Texas A&M, ranked first in the latest Associated Press poll, is 6-0 for the season and 2-0 in conference competition. Arkansas has lost only to Texas.

Stiff Problem
Navy likely will pose a stiff problem for Notre Dame at South Bend. The Midshipmen walloped the Irish 33-7 last year and have much the same team back, particularly Tom Forrestal and his passing, and their big line which should be a physical match for Notre Dame.

Notre Dame, which squeezed past Army and Pitt by narrow margins, comes up to Navy in greater strength than it did for Army. The return to action of its swiftest back, Aubrey Lewis, adds considerably to the team's offense.

Iowa is rated no better than a tossup against Michigan. Should the Hawkeyes win, their game with Ohio State Nov. 16 probably will decide the Big Ten championship. Michigan, which has come back strong following its 35-6 setback by Michigan State two weeks ago, must win tomorrow to remain in the race.

Stem Test
Auburn, leading with Mississippi in the Southeastern Conference, faces its stiffest remaining challenge against Florida. Auburn will be host to the Gators, who have won three games and lost only one—to Mississippi.

Winner of five games in which it has held the opposition to a total of 10 points, Dartmouth will come into Yale Bowl as co-favorite in the race for Ivy League honors. Yale, not quite as strong in the line as a year ago, still is capable of putting up a rugged fight in defense of its title.

Princeton will be at Brown and these games plus Yale-Princeton and Princeton-Dartmouth later in the season are likely to decide the Ivy winner.

Other important meetings match Michigan State and Wisconsin, Ohio State and Northwestern, Louisiana State and Vanderbilt, Texas and Southern Methodist and Washington State and Oregon State.

Oregon, leading the Pacific Coast Conference, figures to have a tough time against the Stanford eleven that humbled UCLA 20-6. Washington State must get by Oregon State's defending champs to stay in the race for the title and the Rose Bowl assignment.

Other leading games by sections are:
EAST—Army-Colgate, Cornell-Columbia, Penn-Harvard, Penn State-West Virginia, Pittsburgh-Syracuse, Boston University-Geo. Washington (Friday night).

Balding was two strokes ahead of Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Tex., and Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., tied for second with 133. Hawkins had a 66-67 and Palmer 65-68.

Reports Yanks Refunded Fines To Copa Frolickers

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—The New York Yankees today were reported to have refunded the fines to five of the six players who were involved in the Copacabana nightclub incident in May.

Dan Daniel, writing in the New York World-Telegram and Sun, said the Yankees were taking this action because Dan Topping, club president, was satisfied with their conduct for the rest of the season.

The Yankees refused to confirm or deny the report. The club never did announce the actual fines.

Hank Bauer, Whitey Ford, Yogi Berra, Mickey Mantle and Billy Martin were fined $1,000 each and Johnny Kucks $500 for participating in the Copa affair. Martin's fine reportedly was refunded when he was traded to Kansas City in mid-June. The Copa incident marked Martin's 29th birthday.

Daniel said Bauer told him in a phone conversation from Kansas City, Mo., that he understood he was getting the money back, although he hadn't received the check.

Pitt Back Quits For West Chester

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31 (AP)—Jimmy Cox, promising sophomore halfback on the Pitt football team, has quit school and will transfer to West Chester State Teachers College.

Cox quit two weeks ago but his absence didn't become public until yesterday. He underwent two knee operations early this year and didn't play this season.

He also was on probation for low grades.

Reached at his home last night by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Cox said, "I just got fed up." He added that he "got tired of just sitting around."

Cox said he has been offered a partial scholarship at West Chester and will start classes Jan. 28.

PCL Heads Air Future Of Old Loop

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 31 (AP)—Pacific Coast League directors, their key cities taken by major league invasion, meet tomorrow to determine the future of their 54-year-old loop.

Two major issues are up for discussion, and possibly action:

1. Deciding damages to be paid the Coast League by the New York Giants moving to San Francisco and the Brooklyn Dodgers heading to Los Angeles.

2. Finding new homes for the three dispossessed clubs — Hollywood, The San Francisco Seals and Los Angeles Angels.

A PCL spokesman said the directors would do their utmost to decide on franchise shifts in the two-day meeting because "the necessity for drawing up schedules and making improvements on inadequate ball parks."

Bids are in prospect from three cities as possible new homes for the PCL clubs — Salt Lake City, Spokane, Wash., and Phoenix, Ariz.

In Trouble? NBA Aide Seeks Ban Of Massachusetts

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 31 (AP)—Fred J. Saddy, executive secretary of the National Boxing Assn., said today he will recommend expulsion of Massachusetts from NBA membership for recognizing the Virgil Akins-Tony DeMarco fight as a welterweight championship.

Saddy said he would make his proposal at the next meeting of the organization's executive committee around the first of the year.

Akins, an 11-5 underdog, clouded the welterweight picture Tuesday night at Boston by knocking out DeMarco, the NBA's No. 1 contender, in the 14th round of their scheduled 15-round bout. Akins had been ranked fifth by the NBA, which does not recognize a champion in the 147-pound division.

Akins Third
Akins, in the November ratings released today, moved up to third while DeMarco dropped to fifth. Akins' victory also earned him the NBA's Boxer of the Month award.

After the knockdown-filled brawl, NBA President Gilbert Jackson said Akins won a spot in a proposed elimination tournament to decide Carmen Basilio's successor as welter champ. Basilio forfeited the crown when he defeated Ray Robinson for the middleweight championship.

Saddy said Isaac Logart, Gil Turner, Vince Martinez and Akins, the top four in the NBA's welterweight division, are eligible for the elimination tournament. Ring Magazine's ratings, also announced today, listed Logart, Akins, DeMarco and Martinez, in that order, as contenders for the vacant welterweight title.

Grid Player 18, Collapses, Dies

WEST CALDWELL, N.J., Oct. 31 (AP)—Kenneth Douglas Straub, 18, a Caldwell High School football player, collapsed and died on the school's practice field yesterday.

Straub, a senior, had just finished calisthenics with team members when he slumped to the ground. He was pronounced dead by a doctor shortly afterward.

Police said an autopsy would be performed to determine the cause of the boy's death.

Caldwell Listed As Critical

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 31 (AP)—Princeton Football Coach Charlie Caldwell remained in critical condition today from a "deep, lingering infection."

Caldwell took a turn for the worse yesterday. He had been in serious condition since his admission to Princeton Hospital Sunday.

The hospital said he is in an oxygen tent and resting comfortably.

South, Southwest Only Areas Bucking Grid Turnout Dip

THE SOUTH and Southwest bucked successfully a general attendance decline in college football during the first half of the 1957 campaign.

In almost every other section of the nation attendance has dropped off, an Associated Press survey disclosed Thursday. The over-all decrease, however, was small, averaging 1.26 per cent or about 300 persons a game.

The survey covering September and October major college games showed that 303 played this season drew 350,360 fewer spectators than 313 games by the same teams last year.

Five conferences, the Atlantic Coast, Southeastern, Big Eight, Southwest and Border, all chalked up gains. The increases range from 8.2 per cent in the Southwest to 17.3 in the Atlantic Coast. The major F— show a slight gain—1.2 per cent.

Army-Notre Dame game in Philadelphia which pulled 96,000 fans through the turnstiles.

The Big Ten is 5.6 per cent under its figures at last year's half-way mark. Attendance in the Pacific Coast Conference has dropped 6.1 per cent and in the Skyline Conference 6.9 per cent.

The larger independents scattered through other sections, whose totals are influenced by Notre Dame and Miami of Florida, suffered an over-all decline of 10.4 per cent.

McCarroll was ill at his home and unavailable for comment. The Massachusetts Boxing Commission said illness prevented him from officiating at fights tonight in Revere, Mass.

Most boxing writers who witnessed the bout didn't think there was any long count.

Bowling Clinic

By Billy Sixty

What Is the Point of Break?
TOO LITTLE attention has been given the right elbow in the swing. Almost without exception, the elbow is broken too soon in its downward arc; and of course the arm, coming up too quickly, either turns to the left too sharply, out of the groove, or the ball is dropped.

The proper point of elbow break? You see it in the sketch. It is after the down-swing passes the sliding left foot and enters naturally and smoothly into the upward, final motion of the completed arc.

To arrive at this position in perfect body balance at the foul line, the swing must begin without physical effort or rush. The ball must be allowed to drop into its downward swing of its own weight.

Full Swing

A bowling swing, to be free and effortless, must be full and complete circle, like a pendulum. And it will be only if the ball weight is felt from the top of the swing. Try it. It may be a little awkward at first but stick with it. You won't drop the ball on the approach behind you, either, because the momentum of the swing quickly whips the ball from the top of the arc to the finish at the foul line. And the ease with which it takes its grooved course will surprise you.
